Senate companion introduced by Sen. Ed Markey

Dear Colleague,

Over the last few months, we've been working with many of the groups and activists who helped to create a movement around the Green New Deal to further flesh out what the Green New Deal would entail. Next week, we plan to release a resolution that outlines the scope and scale of the Green New Deal. In it, we call for a national, social, industrial and economic mobilization at a scale not seen since World War II to:

- Achieve net-zero greenhouse gas emissions through a fair and just transition for all communities and workers;
- Create millions of good, high-wage jobs and ensure prosperity and economic security for all;
- Invest in U.S. infrastructure and industry to sustainably meet the challenges of the 21st century;
- Secure clean air and water, climate resiliency, healthy food, access to nature and a sustainable environment for all for generations to come;
- Promote justice and equity by preventing current and repairing historic oppression to frontline and vulnerable communities.

The goals set by the Green New Deal resolution will be accomplished through a 10-year plan that takes on a series of industrial and infrastructure projects that will transform every sector of our economy and society. Throughout the resolution, we establish requirements of justice and economic security to ensure that the society we create through the Green New Deal ensures a new era of shared prosperity for all.
